IDOC ANNUAL REPORT

Fiscal Year 2005

Mission Statement

“The mission of the Department of Corrections is to protect the public from criminal offenders through a system of incarceration and supervision which securely segregates offenders from society, assures offenders of their constitutional rights and maintains programs to enhance the success of offenders’ reentry into society.”

DIRECTOR'S MESSAGE

Fiscal Year 2005 is significant because it marks a period when the state has experienced a significant increased effort in reducing crime and recidivism through innovative reform initiatives. Although it is a long-term challenge, it's important to invest in these aggressive measures to ensure public safety in our communities, now and for the future.

The Illinois Department of Corrections continues to build on its prison-based treatment and reentry programs to help inmates integrate into society. The agency focuses on these programs in managing 45,000 inmates and 35,000 parolees.

Reentry management of inmates statewide is a major goal of Governor Rod R. Blagojevich and the agency. Already, these programs are showing promise.

The Governor's Operation Spotlight Parole Reform Program enhances parole supervision on the streets through increased monitoring and graduated sanctions. All parolees receive direct supervision in the community. Operation Spotlight enables agents to more quickly determine which parolees pose a risk to public safety and should be re-incarcerated. It also enables agents to identify which parolees require greater case management, such as drug treatment, mental health and job preparedness services. Operation Spotlight has resulted in putting nearly 100 more parole agents to work in communities and more than doubling contacts with parolees in many communities.

Another important component to the program is the Spotlight Reentry Centers. The agency has recently opened seven of these centers in high-impact regions that serve as resource centers. The Spotlight Centers provide counseling, programs and services to support the parolee's transition into society. The centers also offer a highly structured Day Reporting Program that offers an alternative sanction for non-violent parole violators.

It's also important to know that nearly 69 percent of the state prison population is incarcerated for a drug-involved crime. To effectively deal with this population, parole agents receive specializing training to manage drug-involved offenders.

In recognizing that drugs are a leading cause of recidivism, the Governor opened the Sheridan National Drug Prison and Reentry Program in January 2004. The facility is designed to be the largest fully dedicated state drug prison in the nation. Today, Sheridan is moving drug-involved offenders through an intensive drug treatment, vocational and job preparation program. The program begins in the prison setting and follows them through their reentry and back into their communities under an extensive case management program with heightened parole supervision. After one year, the Sheridan program is showing promise with nearly a 66 percent reduction in the return-to-prison rate.

Also, by increasing the number of parole agents, the Governor launched the most aggressive sex offender supervision program in history. Prior to this program, most agents did not receive extensive training. Sex offenders were managed like any other high-risk offender, with only one contact per month. Today, there are specially trained agents supervising all of the state's paroled sex offenders. These agents also will be supported by a new sex offender surveillance unit to follow up on serious questions of potential re-offending behavior.

To support these efforts, the Illinois Department of Corrections will be implementing a GPS (Global Positioning System) pilot project in December 2005 to track the movement of paroled sex offenders. This system will track 200 high-risk sex offenders.

Other initiatives are in the works to support these reentry efforts. At a time when nearly 40,000 inmates are projected to complete their sentences and be released into our communities, the Governor in December 2004 launched a Statewide Community Safety and Reentry Working Group.

The group is making recommendations for a statewide reentry management plan and targeting the state's top 10 high-impact regions. These regions house 84 percent of the state's reentering parole populations and are traditionally higher crime areas.

To support their work, subcommittees have held hearings on five key issue areas proven to impact recidivism and public safety. The areas include public safety; health and behavioral health, which will largely target substance abuse and mental health; employability, education and training; housing; and faith, family and community.

Also, in May 2005, the Governor introduced the first meeting of the Community Safety and Reentry Commission. The commission is chaired by Rev. Jesse Jackson and Peoria County State's Attorney Kevin Lyons. The commission will provide the Governor with recommendations to reduce the cost of crime and keep people from recommitting crimes. Commission members include state legislators, congressmen as well as community, church, business and education leaders from around the state.

The commission will focus on three areas. It will recommend changes to the correctional system to improve educational and job training opportunities, and the use of prison industries. It will also recommend timely connections with community groups and support services. The commission will examine barriers that impede reentry and recommend ways of removing unnecessary barriers. Formerly incarcerated people face numerous barriers during the reentry process. These barriers include getting state identification cards upon release, accessing appropriate housing, and being banned from certain professions and health concerns. The commission also will recommend cost effective prevention and community safety strategies.

The Governor's recidivism reform initiatives represent his commitment to the success of reentry management and are imperative to building a better tomorrow for the citizens of Illinois. Inmates and parolees are now given more opportunities for successful reentry into society than ever before.

There is no silver bullet, but recidivism reform is here and it is front stage in everything we do. A journey like this can seem like a thousand miles, but you always have to take that first step to get there. The Illinois Department of Corrections has taken that first step and is fully committed to meeting the challenge.

In closing, I want to thank and commend the agency's responsible managers and courageous and competent staff who continue to carry out the mission of the Illinois Department of Corrections in operating one of the largest and safest prison systems in the nation. Everyday, I am proud of your leadership, professionalism and accomplishments.

<sup>1</sup> Historical intra-institution comparisons are affected by how the functional use of the institution has changed over time (i.e., security level is different, population may have housed juveniles or a different gender, primary role of the facility regarding program services has been altered, etc.)

<sup>2</sup> Expenditures among satellite facilities cannot be extracted from parent facilities for a host of reasons as administrative, dietary, medical, staffing, services costs, etc. are shared. Also, the expenditures here only include correctional facilities; some expenditures such as parole, general office, shared services, etc. are not included. The FY06 General Revenue Fund expenditures for the Department of Corrections were $1,170,060,800.

<sup>3</sup> Per capita costs are calculated as expenditures divided by average daily population. For the same reasons listed in footnote #1, the historical intra- and inter-institution comparisons are affected. Further, per capita costs are a function of economies of scale which further limits an objective comparison between correctional sites; especially higher security level sites or sites with a small number of inmates.

ILLINOIS CORRECTIONAL INDUSTRIES PROGRAM PROVIDES FURNITURE FOR NEW PRESIDENTIAL LIBRARY AND MUSEUM

In Fiscal Year 2005, the Illinois Department of Corrections announced that its Illinois Correctional Industries Program is one of the furniture providers for the new Abraham Lincoln Presidential Library and Museum in Springfield. The Presidential Library and Museum brings together the world's largest collection of documentary material related to the life of the 16th president.

“The Illinois Department of Corrections is pleased to be an integral part of portraying one of America’s most renowned presidents by providing quality products designed and manufactured by inmates for the Abraham Lincoln Presidential Library and Museum,” IDOC Director Roger E. Walker Jr. said. “The endeavor of the department’s inmates to provide the quality of product that fits into the Abraham Lincoln Presidential Library and Museum is a proud moment for Illinois. It is also a proud moment for the Illinois Department of Corrections. What better way to demonstrate the rehabilitation of inmates on their return journey to society as useful members of the community.”

Inmates participating in ICI’s program built a combination of desks, executive chairs, modular furniture, filing cabinets and tables for the Presidential Library and Museum. These ICI products will be prominently used in the Lincoln collection reception room and the curator’s office. The custom cherry work stations as well as trestle tables and chairs will be featured throughout the library.

The Presidential Library opened on Oct. 14, 2004, and the Museum opened on April 19, 2005.

GOVERNOR BLAGOJEVICH LAUNCHES NEW “STATEWIDE COMMUNITY SAFETY AND REENTRY WORKING GROUP”

Team to build on state’s ongoing efforts to target recidivism

Governor Rod R. Blagojevich launched a new “Statewide Community Safety and Reentry Working Group” to support the state’s ongoing efforts to promote community safety and reduce recidivism on Dec. 17, 2004. The Governor charged the working group with establishing recommendations for a statewide reentry management plan and targeting the state’s top 10 high-impact regions, which house 84 percent of the state’s reentering parole populations and are traditionally higher crime areas.

The 10 High-Impact Regions will include:

Region	Adult Parole Population
Cook/Chicago	19,561	(59.7%)
Collar County Region (with emphasis on Aurora)	3,223	(9.8%)
St. Clair/Madison	1,034	(3.1%)
Winnebago	930	(2.8%)
Champaign/Vermilion	764	(2.3%)
Macon	638	(1.9%)
Peoria	584	(1.8%)
Sangamon	488	(1.5%)
Rock Island	251	(0.8%)
Jefferson	105	(0.3%)

To support their work, subcommittees held hearings on five key issue areas proven to impact recidivism and public safety. The areas included Public Safety; Health and Behavioral Health, which targeted substance abuse and mental health; employability, education and training; housing; and faith, family and community.

Secretary Carol Adams of the Illinois Department of Human Services and Assistant Director Deanne Benos of the Illinois Department of Corrections co-chaired the working group that consisted of a 33-member executive committee. Members included federal, state and local leaders from across the state who offer varying perspectives and expertise on offender reentry. The committee was comprised of law enforcement officials, elected officials, public policy experts, faith-based leaders, corrections officials, human services providers, substance abuse providers, education leaders, job placement specialists, business leaders, housing activists and ex-offenders.

CHRISTMAS CAMP BRINGS TOGETHER
INMATE MOTHERS AND THEIR CHILDREN
DURING THE HOLIDAYS AT LINCOLN CORRECTIONAL CENTER

Inmate mothers were reunited with their children in Fiscal Year 2005 during the “Christmas Camp” at the Illinois Department of Corrections Lincoln Correctional Center. The program, which is an extension of the “Mom and Me Camp,” allows for the mothers and children to share the holiday season together outside of a visiting room.

Structured activities for the 24 inmate mothers and 55 children during the “Christmas Camp” included cookie decorating, caroling, gift exchange and tree decorating. As part of the event, the mothers and their children made ornaments and cards for each other and were also photographed together. The center’s building maintenance class also made puzzles for the children.

“The goal is to create a Christmas experience for the families,” said Carolyn Robertson, warden at Lincoln Correctional Center. “The occasion even includes a visit by Santa and a pizza party.”

During the camp, there is always quiet time where the mothers and children can read or play a quiet game. Or, they can participate in physical activities such as relay races on the gym floor, Robertson said.

The legacy of the “Mom and Me Camp” began in 2002 with the late Correctional Chaplain Lauire Tockey. Tockey, who was a 22-year veteran of the agency, died Nov. 24, 2004, from injuries sustained in an automobile accident.

Tockey described the program as “God’s vision” to him.

“It was his vision, his passion, his heart,” said Robertson of Tockey, who had served as correctional chaplain at Lincoln Correctional Center for 19 years. “He wanted to create a program that would provide a more extended and higher quality of interaction between the moms and their children. He wanted a program that would help maintain bonds between mothers and their children and provide them with a longer visitation to work together on projects.”

Tockey’s personal experience with summer camp as a child also contributed to the “Mom and Me Camp” program vision that would offer children from an urban setting the experience of a summer camp in nature.

Tockey discussed the idea with Shirley Ryan, a volunteer for the IDOC since 1997. Because of her efforts and relationships with other volunteers and staff at East Bay Camp, the vision of a summer camp for inmate children became a reality. Ryan recruited volunteers and raised funds to help bring 43 children to their incarcerated mothers for three-days of structured activities that provided supportive and positive experience.

“The benefits of the camp were immeasurable,” said Debbie Denning, deputy director of Women and Family Services. “For the first time, many of the children had the opportunity to relate to their mothers outside the prison visiting room.”

In addition to building a better relationship with their mothers, the children also found a new friend in Ryan, Denning said. Many who visit the center call her the ‘camp lady.’ The children are eager to share with her their successes in school and life since attending “Mom and Me Camp.”

For her extraordinary efforts of creating the “Mom and Me Camp,” Shirley Ryan was named the 2003 Volunteer of the Year for IDOC.

“In addition to the “Mom and Me Camp,” the division continually promotes a variety of programs to strengthen and reinforce the bonding between mothers and their children,” Denning said. “Children and families play an important role in the management of offenders in custodial settings.”

GOVERNOR BLAGOJEVICH MARKS ONE-YEAR ANNIVERSARY OF SHERIDAN NATIONAL MODEL DRUG PRISON & REENTRY PROGRAM

National Experts Commend Program for Promising Early Results Showing Reduction in Crime & Recidivism Among Program Participants

On the one-year anniversary of the Sheridan National Model Drug Prison & Reentry program, Governor Rod R. Blagojevich released on Jan. 2, 2005, the results of an early evaluation of the program showing success in reducing crime and recidivism by as much as 66 percent. While noting that the young program – which is targeted to become the nation’s largest, state-run drug prison and reentry program of its kind – is still being developed, the Governor and national experts commended Sheridan for showing great promise in the fight against recidivism.

“When I announced the launch of the Sheridan project in my first State of the State Address as Governor of the State of Illinois, I charged our team with making Illinois a national model for drug crime prevention,” the Governor said. “The message was clear: This will be a long-term challenge, but we are ready. It is time to stop accepting the vicious cycle of crime and drugs – one that has resulted in record numbers of offenders returning to Illinois’ communities without the skills and preparation they need to live crime- and drug-free lives.”

“Governor Blagojevich is to be commended for his national leadership on targeting recidivism by launching the Sheridan project and statewide parole reform. In its first year of operation, Sheridan has taken proven research and best reentry practices and incorporated them into a project that promises to be a national model for reform. Because the Governor has ensured that all of the right pieces have been put into place for ongoing success, we have every reason to believe that these early, but promising reports of recidivism reduction will only continue to grow, thus improving community safety,” said Dr. Visher, who is also the principal investigator for an ongoing study of Illinois parolees in Chicago.

The report provides tracking information that compares rearrest and reincarceration rates of the first round of 150 inmates released from Sheridan with a group of other parolees with similar histories. The research shows that 12% of Sheridan parolees were rearrested compared to 27% of the other group (a roughly 55% reduction); and that 2% of Sheridan parolees were reincarcerated compared with over 10% of the other group (a roughly 66% reduction).

The research also shows that the longer offenders stayed in the drug treatment program, the greater their success. Of the Sheridan parolees that had at least seven months of prison-based treatment, none had been rearrested – compared with at least a 20% rearrest rate in the other group.

Diane Williams, president of the SAFER Foundation, stated that Sheridan participants have been more likely to secure honest work than the average parolee and have been securing jobs more quickly. Generally basing her comparisons on a different study of Illinois parolees conducted by the Urban Institute, Williams said that 46% of all eligible Sheridan parolees were working compared to 30% in the study. In addition, 44% of Sheridan parolees found employment within 30 days of release compared with 31% in the study. (Williams noted that mechanisms are not yet in place to track statewide employment using consistent measures, but the Urban Institute study provided a general benchmark.)

“While it is still early, the preliminary findings on both recidivism and employment are encouraging, and will likely continue as the program evolves and matures. What makes these initial findings even more impressive is the fact that the participants in the program have very extensive substance abuse and criminal histories,” said Dr. Olson.

The Sheridan program was launched on Jan. 2, 2004, with the goal of becoming a national model drug prison and reentry program that targets drugs as a leading factor in rising recidivism rates over the past decade. Drug and property offenders (which are largely considered to be drug-involved) have among the highest recidivism rates in the state prison population. It is estimated that as many as 69 percent of all adult prison admissions annually are for drug- or drug-involved crimes.

“The Sheridan project is first and foremost an issue of public safety. As states across the nation grapple with recidivism rates that have been rising to record levels for years, programs like this will help target the root causes of crime, such as substance abuse, and ultimately make communities safer,” said Illinois Department of Corrections Assistant Director Deanne Benos, whose office manages the program.

Because of the magnitude of the impact of drugs on crime in Illinois, Sheridan was designed to be the largest fully-dedicated state drug prison in the nation. At full capacity, Sheridan will serve a total of 1,300 inmates at a time, but as many as 1,700 are projected to be admitted to the program each year.

The Sheridan program targets offenders, with the exception of sex offenders and murderers, designated by clinicians as having a substance abuse problem that impacts their criminal behavior. Every inmate involved in the program is immersed into a therapeutic community environment that involves intensive drug treatment, cognitive skills development, counseling and mental health services. The goal of these services is to make the offender accountable for addressing both his drug addiction as well as to change the fundamental values and attitudes that have driven past criminal behavior. The prison-based drug treatment is provided by the Gateway Foundation, which has been recognized for successfully reducing crime and recidivism among drug-involved offenders in their programs nationwide.

The Sheridan program also demands personal accountability from inmates that goes beyond overcoming drug addiction. For the first time in state history, all offenders are required to participate in a SAFER Foundation job preparedness program that provides them with the skills to seek honest work upon their return to their communities. A new sector-based vocational education program was created specifically for Sheridan to support this effort. This program provides vocational training for jobs in a series of growing business sectors with opportunities for hiring ex-offenders, including hospitality, manufacturing, technology and construction. In addition, a new cutting-edge curriculum was developed to offer a “bridge” that integrates these practical job training courses with adult basic education for inmates with lower reading and math skills. In the past, it has been standard IDOC policy to prohibit inmates from accessing certain types of programming unless they first completed adult basic education on a separate track – sometimes leaving them without practical job skills.

“The Sheridan project is all about teamwork,” said IDOC Director Roger E. Walker Jr. “The Governor and I are committed to ensuring safer streets and saving taxpayers’ money by giving offenders the best opportunity to become productive, law-abiding citizens in the State of Illinois.”

One of the more unique components of the Sheridan project is the consistent focus on preparing all inmates for their crime-free and drug-free reentry from the moment they arrive at the facility through their completion of parole and beyond. Different from other programs that often begin addressing these issues within days of release, the Sheridan project establishes community-based connections on an ongoing basis – service contractors and agency staff work with offenders both in the prison and the community. For example, the SAFER Foundation provides job preparedness services that begin in the prison and carry through to actual job placement in the community. Treatment Alternatives for Safe Communities (TASC) begins working with offenders in prison to develop their clinical reentry plan for drug treatment, housing, mental health and anger management services, and then continues to work with them and manage the plan throughout their entire parole term.

“The Sheridan program is a true national model for substance abuse treatment and successful community reintegration,” said TASC President Melody Heaps. “Its comprehensive approach to recovery signifies a positive trend toward integrating systems and services for the corrections population. Sheridan represents a true investment in communities through a balance of public safety and restoration of citizenship.”

JEFFREY AND GINGER ELLIS AT FOX VALLEY ADULT TRANSITION CENTER NAMED AS IDOC'S 2005 VOLUNTEERS OF THE YEAR

Jeffrey and Ginger Ellis were named as the 2005 Volunteers of the Year for the Illinois Department of Corrections at a recognition ceremony held at the agency's general headquarters in Springfield on April 21, 2005. Mr. and Mrs. Ellis were among 38 volunteers being honored for their outstanding leadership and support at IDOC. The couple was recognized for their extraordinary efforts in spiritual giving and enriching the lives of the female inmates at the Fox Valley Adult Transition Center (ATC), a work release center housing nearly 130 female residents.

As volunteers of the Calvary Church, Mr. and Mrs. Ellis began holding a monthly "coffee house" spiritual service for the center residents in 2003. Together they would provide an array of desserts and beverages while conducting religious services and playing music. What began as a handful of inmate attendees has now become an event that fills the center's dining room to capacity. The couple since developed their own ministry, entitled Ellis Ministries, with Fox Valley ATC inmates as their primary mission. Through church, community and private donations, the ministry has made a significant impact on the lives of the women and benefited the center's programs.

Ellis Ministries has donated more than 100 Bibles for their Sunday Bible study class. During holiday dinners and special events, such as Mother's Day, they contribute food, beverages, flowers and gifts. In addition, the ministry provides individual grief and spiritual counseling as well as assisting inmate family members during difficult times. Mr. and Mrs. Ellis have been known to travel more than 100 miles to assist the child of an inmate during a crisis.

"Throughout it all, they have given to everyone without asking for anything in return," said Al White, Fox Valley ATC supervisor. "Whenever we are faced with a dilemma, they come through by helping to supplement essential and beneficial programs. Mr. and Mrs. Ellis have never judged the women here at the ATC and treat each one like a fellow church member. Even if some inmates do not participate in a workshop or religious service, Ellis Ministries will reach out to them. They are here for all the women at the center. The residents are fortunate to have people like them in their lives.”

During the agency’s ceremony, IDOC Director Roger E. Walker Jr. praised all the department’s volunteers for their efforts in providing positive change in the lives of others, noting that helping others is essential to the foundation of our society.

“Whether you are a veteran volunteer or just recently joined the department, your efforts are making a tremendous impact on the lives of others and we thank you for that,” Walker said. “There are many things in life we cannot always measure, but we know their value. At Corrections, we know the value of our volunteers. They help us fill the gaps in preparing inmates for a better tomorrow. Whether through their teachings, their words of encouragement, just sharing a smile or simply lending an ear, volunteers are invaluable to our well being.”

BLAGOJEVICH ADMINISTRATION RECOGNIZES CORRECTIONS OFFICERS OF THE YEAR

*Five front line staff were recognized as recipients of the Correctional Officer of the Year Award on May 4, 2005, at a ceremony that recognizes outstanding employees and the IDOC’s fallen heroes. From left are Correctional Officer Tyrone Carter of Vandalia Correctional Center; Parole Agent Shannon Champion of District 4; Correctional Officer Angelita Hanson of Decatur Correctional Center; and Youth Supervisor II Leonard DiFiore of Illinois Youth Center-St. Charles. On behalf of Gov. Rod R. Blagojevich, Illinois Department of Corrections Director Roger E. Walker Jr. recognized on May 4, 2005, five outstanding front line employees as 2005 Correctional Officers of the Year. The recognition comes during Correctional Officer Week in Illinois May 2–6.

“Through their professionalism, leadership and courage, these employees serve by example in protecting the public and enhancing the success of offenders who are reentering into society,” said Gov. Blagojevich.

Walker also commended the efforts of front line staff and noted that the agency’s main focus is to operate a safe and secure prison system.

“In every decision we make and in every action we take, safety is at the forefront of our operations,” Walker said. “It gives me great pride to honor the excellence of our front line staff. This fine group of men and women face challenges every day with steadfast commitment.”

★ Correctional Officer Tyrone Carter of Vandalia Correctional Center

Officer Carter, Vandalia Correctional Center, has exceptional knowledge regarding his duties and responsibilities. He consistently completes his assignments in a successful and professional manner while maintaining harmony and enthusiasm. Officer Carter upholds a good relationship with his fellow employees and assists others when needed.

★ Correctional Officer Angelita Hanson of Decatur Correctional Center

Officer Hanson, Decatur Correctional Center, works virtually every assignment at the center with little or no supervision and currently is assigned to the Industries Department. She always maintains a positive and professional attitude and a commendable attendance record. Officer Hanson works well with fellow staff members, offenders and the public.

★ Youth Supervisor II Leonard DiFiore of Illinois Youth Center-St. Charles

DiFiore, Illinois Youth Center-St. Charles, can always be counted on to have a positive attitude and demeanor. He adapts well to change and has exceptional knowledge of automobiles and mechanics. He is assigned to the Statewide Transportation Unit and is a significant part of that team. His primary assignment is to perform security functions.

★ Correctional Residence Counselor I Maxine Walker of Crossroads Adult Transition Center

Walker, Crossroads Adult Transition Center, has developed a reputation for firm, yet fair and consistent treatment of all center residents. She maintains a professional demeanor in her daily encounters with staff and residents.

★ Parole Agent Shannon Champion of District 4

Agent Champion, District 4, chose to work with a specialized caseload of sex offenders maintaining her caseload in an effective and efficient manner. She has an excellent rapport with the community and other law enforcement agencies. Because of her expertise in dealing with sex offenders, she is often asked to speak to various groups in the community.

Nominations for this year's award come from officers recognized at each of IDOC's 27 state prisons, eight juvenile centers, eight adult transition centers and parole districts. This year's top five front line employees were presented with recognition letters from the governor and IDOC director and a $500 check from the Employee Benefit Fund. The nominees are judged on leadership, initiative, professionalism and service to their community and career.

GOVERNOR BLAGOJEVICH LAUNCHES
COMMUNITY SAFETY AND REENTRY COMMISSION TO ADDRESS RECIDIVISM, STRENGTHEN REENTRY MANAGEMENT

Reentry Commission, chaired by Rev. Jesse Jackson and Peoria State's Attorney Kevin Lyons, to hold first meeting

On May 8, 2005, Governor Rod R. Blagojevich introduced the full membership and announced the first meeting of the Community Safety and Reentry Commission. The commission, chaired by Rev. Jesse Jackson and Peoria County State's Attorney Kevin Lyons, will provide the Governor with recommendations to reduce the cost of crime and keep people from recommitting crimes. Members of the diverse, bipartisan commission include state legislators, congressmen and community, church, business and education leaders from around the state.

"Right now, more than half of the prison inmates in this state end up right back in prison. And, this year alone, more than 40,000 prisoners will be released from prison. We need an aggressive and comprehensive strategy to make sure fewer of them find their way back to prison," Gov. Blagojevich said. "This group of civic leaders and elected officials will examine the prison system and look for ways to reduce recidivism – their recommendations could include increasing education opportunities and providing job training."

The commission will focus in three areas; increasing opportunities for successful reentry, removing reentry barriers, and developing cost effective crime prevention and community safety strategies.

- Increasing opportunities for formerly incarcerated people to successfully reintegrate is essential to reducing recidivism. These opportunities can include improved educational opportunities, appropriate job training and use of prison industries, and timely connections with community groups and supportive services. The commission will recommend changes to the correctional system to improve opportunities that will result in successful reentry and reduced recidivism.

- Formerly incarcerated people face numerous barriers during the reentry process. These barriers include getting State Identification Cards upon release, accessing appropriate housing, being banned from certain professions and health concerns. The commission will examine the barriers that impede reentry and recommend ways of removing unnecessary barriers.
- Effective monitoring and support of formerly incarcerated people is key to community safety and successful reentry. Ensuring that there are appropriate sanctions for negative behavior that take into account community safety and the reentry process are critical steps to reduced recidivism. The commission will recommend cost effective prevention and community safety strategies.

“I commend the Governor for his leadership on this important community issue. State’s Attorney Lyons and I are going to partner to unify the state behind a plan that will help make communities safer and stronger and create opportunities for people who need nothing more than an opportunity to change their lives and become responsible members of their community,” said Co-Chair Reverend Jesse Jackson.

“I greatly appreciate the opportunity that Governor Blagojevich has provided for me to work with Reverend Jesse Jackson and statewide leaders to address recidivism, an issue at the forefront of public safety. As a prosecutor, I’ve always believed that people must be held accountable for the crimes they commit, but this state has a responsibility to make sure that we do everything possible to ensure that we give them the necessary tools to become productive, crime-free citizens. While these are long-term issues, it is my hope that this plan will end this vicious cycle,” Co-Chair Peoria County State’s Attorney Kevin Lyons said.

Reducing the recidivism rate is a long-term public safety and public policy issue that the Governor began addressing at the onset of his term. Some of these efforts have already begun to show promise, such as the Sheridan National Model Drug Prison and Reentry Program and “Operation Spotlight” Parole Reform Plan. The Community Safety and Reentry Commission will examine these models, as well as others throughout the nation.

The commission’s work will be supported by the Governor’s Community Safety and Reentry Working Group, which was launched in December 2004 and continues to hold public hearings that address reentry efforts of the top 10 high-impact regions of the state with the largest reentry offender population.

IDOC RAISES $269,000 FOR 2004 SECA CAMPAIGN, WINS TOP HONORS FOR FOURTH CONSECUTIVE YEAR

At the SECA awards reception, IDOC received the highest award, the Capitol Cup, for the fourth consecutive year. IDOC Director Roger E. Walker Jr. (left), Volunteer Services Coordinator Marcy Nolan and Chief of Community Outreach / Special Assistant to Director Dennis Cooper are presented the award.

The Illinois Department of Corrections won top honors in the 2004 State Employees Combined Appeal (SECA) Campaign at the SECA Awards Reception held May 18, 2005, at the Executive Mansion in Springfield. IDOC received the highest award, the Capitol Cup, for the fourth consecutive year. The award is given to an agency for the most staff participation and exceptional giving.

During the 2004 campaign, the agency raised $269,000. Staff from IDOC's correctional centers, work camps, boot camps, adult transition centers, juvenile centers, parole offices as well as its General Headquarters, School District No. 428 and Correctional Industries joined together to contribute to one or more charities that provide health and human services to thousands of people in Illinois.

"It was indeed an honor to be named as honorary chair by the Governor," said IDOC Director Roger E. Walker Jr. "It's also been an honor to work with such a fine group of individuals who believe in SECA's mission. The 2004 SECA Campaign was again a success and much of that credit goes to the many dedicated behind-the-scenes people and SECA ambassadors who worked hard to ensure this commendable achievement."

Among those being recognized during the ceremony for exceptional participation in the SECA mission was Marcy Nolan, volunteer services coordinator and SECA ambassador for IDOC. Nolan was presented the Lee Frost-Kumpf Award for her outstanding commitment and dedication to the SECA cause.
